To All Clippard Distributors, Customers, and Supply Chain Partners:

As an essential supplier to the medical and other critical markets, Clippard remains open and ready to service all orders and unique demands to help in the efforts to save lives through this unique crisis. We are following all current CDC recommendations internally in our manufacturing facilities to maintain a clean, sanitized work environment and keep our people healthy to insure you get the products you need. As we are seeing an increase in demand for critical products needed for ventilators and other life saving medical equipment, please contact our Sales department for any unique requests and current lead times. We are doing everything that we can internally and with our supply chain to service COVID-19 related needs in an expedited manner. We appreciate our business partners and being able to serve each of you through these unprecedented times. I wish you all good health and safety through this unique time.

With Sincere Thanks and Gratitude,

William A. Clippard

President
